ANNUAL REPORTS OF TERRITORIAL OFFICIALS

THEY ARE MORE COMPLETE AND COMPREHENSIVE THAN EVER BEFORE.

Detailed Analysis of Conditions Physical, Financial and Administrative.

There has never been a time in recent years when the annual reports of the various territorial officials to the governor did not give a very fair idea of the conditions in the territory, but there never was such an elaborate set of reports, so complete in detail and so comprehensive in their reflection of conditions as compared with former years, as the reports filed this year with Governor Sloan, for the fiscal year ending June 30. There are not only summaries of receipts and expenditures in all departments of the government, but tables showing just where the revenues originated and tracing expenditures to their finality, and other tables showing comparisons that indicate the increases or decreases in revenues and expenditures. In other departments where other than financial data is concerned, as for instance in that of the territorial health officer, there has been a similar thoroughness of the work.

Probably the most voluminous report is that of the territorial board of control, which embraces statistical information concerning all the public institutions, as well as the record in detail of receipts and expenditures. The report of Territorial Auditor W. C. Foster is almost as large and is naturally the most comprehensive in point of matters financial. He has submitted separate reports as chairman of the board of equalization and as bank controller, and were these all regarded as one report they would probably be more voluminous than that of the board of control. While the matter of accounts and records probably had something of perfection, as all things human must, the carefulness and detail with which the 1910 reports have been compiled leave no room for anybody short of a scientific accountant to offer criticism and even he would have to prove it before the average man who might study the reports would admit that any phase of the territory's business had been overlooked.

All the reports are too voluminous for even an attempt at telling what they cover, but a few references to those of the auditor and the board of control may be illuminating, and some of the figures in the former are especially interesting, in respect of revenue and expenditures. Quite a lengthy synopsis of the health officer's report was published by The Republican a week or two ago.

Under revenue and expenditures the following facts are shown by the auditor's report:

That the total revenues for the year were $1,121,381.48, and the expenditures were $974,102.74, the excess of revenue over expenditures being $145,277.74.

The treasurer's cash balance was $525,262.05, which less the outstanding warrants left an auditor's balance of $507,721.97. Comparison with the same accounts for the year before showed a net gain in the cash balance of $145,277.74.

The revenues for the year 1910 were $1,121,381.48, an increase in the revenue of the preceding year of $205,891.28.

The expenditures for the year 1910 were $974,102.74, a decrease from the expenditures of the former year of $13,266.74, which decrease added to the increased revenue makes a total gross increase in revenue of $219,158.02.

Then follows a long table showing the sources of all revenue, both for the present and last year and the increase or decrease in each instance. Next follows a table showing the actual expendable revenues of the territory, taxes of various kinds, etc., which were taken as the basis in making the annual estimate of expenditures, together with other funds such as insurance fees, government provision for agricultural college, license and inspection fees, national forests and other items that are variable in the nature.

The territorial road fund is treated very exhaustively. The taxes collected, some of the difficulties encountered and how they were overcome, all of which is too voluminous for extended reference. The total receipts for this fund were $153,059.23, and the expenditures to June 30 were $44,412.47, leaving on hand $108,646.76. The estimated cost of the projects under way is $145,000, less $22,147.57 which has been paid on contracts, leaving $112,852.43 to be paid, if the estimate be correct, or $4,205.67 more than is on hand from last year's unexpended revenues, but these payments of course were not due and will not be in their entirety until this year's revenues begin to come in. The revenue estimated for the next year is approximately $195,000.

There are tables showing the details of the expenditures for new construction at the hospital for the insane, on the asylum grounds and at the territorial prison, the Tempe normal, and the university, and the pioneers' home at Prescott. No expenditure has been made from the appropriation of $10,000 authorized for the completion of the third floor of the Northern Arizona normal, and there has been no important construction at the industrial school.

The balances remaining to the credit of the various improvement funds on June 30 were as follows:

Asylum for the Insane	$ 677.32
Northern Arizona Normal School ..	10,000.99
Pioneers' Home	24,206.50
Tempe Normal	57.35
Territorial Prison	22,782.45
Industrial School
Direct levy	$9,216.66
General fund	2,489.43
University of Ariz.	11,697.03
	733.87

Appropriations authorized for improvement purposes for 1910 are:

Tempe Normal School

University of Arizona

Total

During the last year all the territorial institutions have kept within the limits of their maintenance appropriations except the asylum and the prison. Deficits in these funds have been cared for out of the general fund as provided for by law.

Next follows a statement of revenue required for all purposes for the fiscal year 1910 and a detailed statement of the requirements of the general fund which is one of the items of the above mentioned statement.

Next is a concise discussion of the public debt. This is followed by about twenty-five pages of tables showing in detail all the fiscal affairs of the territory as mentioned in the preceding summaries and more general tables.

The concluding item of the report of the auditor is a transcript of the reports of all the producing mining companies of the territory for the year showing the mineral output.

The report of the board of control is equally as statistical but the figures are of a different sort, in the main, though in treating of the various institutions, the figures showing receipts and expenditures for the present year are given, showing comparisons of cost of maintenance, the auditor dealing with funds, the board dealing with detailed institutional comparisons. The subjects treated are under the heads of the different institutions including the asylum, capitol building and grounds, fair grounds, Gila river bridge, industrial school, pioneers' home, prison, territorial roads, office expense of the board of control and traveling expense of the board. There are incorporated also reports from the superintendents of each of the institutions that have such officers.

The report is particularly interesting at this period and it available to the later historian may prove of value, for it recites in narrative form much of the story of the new territorial roads, the new prison and other things that a few years hence may be all guess work and memory, or would be except for the filing of some such documents.

The reports deal not merely with the institutions, such as asylum, prison and industrial school but with their inmates, giving data as to number, age, sex, race, religion, conjugal relations, habits of life, conduct, etc.

The cost of prison maintenance has been less than that of the preceding year and the average attendance has been 389.347 as against 415.858. The net daily cost per capita was a little over 72 cents as against a little over 75 cents last year.

The cost of maintaining the asylum has been a little higher than the year before, owing chiefly to higher cost of supplies.

The board recommends that the site of the industrial school be changed to some agricultural section. Concerning the capitol building attention is called to the fact that it is already crowded and with the inauguration of a state government the completion of the building will have to be given early attention.

SUCH IS FAME.

A young man returned to the country village where he was born, after having successfully worked his way up to a desirable government office.

"I suppose the people here, Thomas, have heard of the honor that has been conferred on me," he inquired of one of his old friends.

"Yes, they have," was the gratifying reply.

"And what," said the man of fame, eagerly, "what do they say about it, Thomas?"

"They don't say anything," replied Thomas; "they just laugh."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

There is a similar table showing the expenditures for the two years, for each and all purposes with the increase or decrease in each instance. Next follows a table showing the actual expendable revenues of the territory, taxes of various kinds, etc., which were taken as the basis in making the annual estimate of expenditures, together with other funds such as insurance fees, government provision for agricultural college, license and inspection fees, national forests and other items that are variable in the nature.
